Notes: Body fluid spills have potential health risks associated with them. Take appropriate precautions. Compounds classed as Oxidisers by ADG and GHS systems should not come into contact with organic materials of any kind. When used for liquid spill clean-up, sorbents tend to take on the characteristics of the liquid they have absorbed. Thus, always consult the SDS of the spilled liquid prior to absorption with Enretech sorbents. Health, safety and environmental risks from Dangerous Goods can vary considerably. In general, Enretech spill kits can be used for many DG liquids, however seek help for all spills involving Packing Group I Dangerous Goods. Contact Enretech Australasia (0425 232 741) for further technical assistance, as required.

Safety and Environmental Compliance...

Today, spill response, and the resultant waste to be disposed of, are governed by regulations to protect both people and the environment. Compliance with these regulations is generally met through the use of commercial spill kits containing high performance absorbents, personal protective equipment, written response procedures/guidelines and accessories to ensure proper storage and disposal of spill wastes.

Enretech offer a range of spill response products that comply with current legislation and Australian Standards, helping you:

- Meet your legal requirements: ensure your Environmental "due diligence", as well as your OH&S "duty of care"
- Reduce your spill clean-up costs
- Meet your Environment Management Plan for waste reduction, increased use of recycled materials and use of products with a low carbon footprint.

Know Your Risks and How to Deal with a Spill Safely

You must conduct a risk assessment of your operations to determine the types and volumes of liquids you will most likely spill, and what type of sorbents and kits you'll need to clean them up.
Use the Kit Selection Chart on the previous page to determine the best Enretech spill kit for your particular workplace.

You can easily and efficiently replace any spill kit items from your preferred supplier whenever you need them, using our online audit & refill tool. Simply access the tool via the QR code here or on your kit.
